

SRCD Disability Caucus

The mission of the SRCD Disability Caucus is to advance developmental research on disability and increase the representation of children and youth with disabilities. Moreover, regardless of personal disability status or identity all scholars who are interested in research with this population, advocacy for this population, or who personally identify as disabled (or some associated identity) are welcomed within this caucus. In addition, another key purpose of this caucus is to support child development scholars with disabilities and build community among disabled scholars.
