Welcome

Promoting Integrative Developmental Science

Welcome to Minneapolis where we come together as developmental scientists to share the latest advances in how we can best understand and support children and families. Now, more than ever, science matters. Your work matters. Our children and families matter, and our science helps to elevate their strengths, challenges, and what our communities can do to promote the development of the next generation.

We Promoting Integrative Developmental Science as our theme for #SRCD2025 because our Biennial represents a rare place where scientists, policymakers, and practitioners from multiple fields come together to share their ideas, findings, and commitment to developmental science and the well-being of our children. The complexity of child development involves multiple influences from culture to the genome, across time, age, and history. Understanding development and leveraging those insights to promote health and well-being, therefore, requires a truly integrative developmental science.

Our invited program includes experts in economic opportunity, infant learning, early language development, racism and anti-racism, research-practice partnerships, brain development, sexual and gender diversity, refugee well-being, digital media, the microbiome, health and well-being, indigenous epistemology, climate change, participatory methods, knowledge dissemination, and so much more across the full swath of development. It highlights both challenges and assets across many sectors of society and across diverse communities within the US and globally. We are also thrilled to have dedicated sessions devoted to the application of science to social and public policy organized by the SRCD Policy Team.

Most importantly, our meeting will showcase the emergent ideas, findings, and practices that all of you bring to the meeting. The number and variety of submissions (3,918) and review panels (32) for the submitted program is a testament to both long-standing areas of focus and newer, emergent areas of inquiry. We are thankful for the efforts of the 64 Panel Co-Chairs and 741 Reviewers who painstakingly reviewed every submission.

So many dedicated SRCD Members and Staff have worked tirelessly behind the scenes to make SRCD25 a reality. We are especially grateful for the hard work and dedication of Julia Johnson who kept the ship afloat and steaming forward toward May 2025. Thank you to Suzanne Le Menestrel and other members of the SRCD Staff who provided invaluable support and have done much to make SRCD25 happen. We would like to thank all of the SRCD Committees, Caucuses, and Members who provided insightful inputs into the invited program. Thanks, too, to members of the Student and Early Career Council who will provide introductions to invited speakers and have helped to organize other elements of the event. We can't wait to see you and encourage you to take advantage of all that SRCD25 has to offer. Share your work, learn new ideas and ways of doing science, and join in the effort to promote integrative developmental science.

Throughout the meeting, follow us on all social media platforms and join the conversation on #SRCD25.

We can't wait to welcome you to Minneapolis!

SRCD Supported Pre-Conference Events

The 2025 SRCD Biennial Meeting, to be held May 1-2, 2025 in Minneapolis, Minnesota, is preceded by pre-conferences that are supported by SRCD on topics of interest to biennial meeting attendees. Pre-conferences for the upcoming biennial will be held on Wednesday, April 30, 2025. The deadline to register for these Pre-conferences has passed. NO onsite tickets will be available.

A Critical Quantitative measurement perspective: MIMIC models to identify and remediate racial & other biases

Time: 9:00 a.m. – 1:30 p.m.

Organizing Committee

- Matthew Diemer, University of Michigan
- Aixa Marchand, University of Illinois Urbana Champaign
- Michael Frisby, Georgia State University

Session Description

Sound measurement is foundational to quantitative methodology and developmental science. However, the racist history of quantitative methodology and measurement lead some to the conclusion that these approaches are irredeemable. Instead, acknowledging this history and repurposing quantitative methodology leads toward a more equitable, anti-racist, and critical quantitative perspective.

This workshop will explore measurement within two emergent perspectives: Quantitative Critical Race Theory (QuantCrit) and the Critical Quantitative (CritQuant) framework. We will emphasize CritQuant, which is anchored by five guiding principles (i.e., foundation, goals, parity, subjectivity, and self-reflexivity) to mitigate racism (and/or other systems of oppression) and advance social justice.

Building Bridges, Burning Bridges: The Role of Intergroup Relations on Moral Development

Time: 1:15 p.m. – 5:30 p.m.

Organizing Committee

- Zehra Gulseven, Virginia Tech University
- Sahitya Maiya, University of New Hampshire
- Sarah Pierotti, Pennsylvania State University-DuBois Campus
- Joy Roos, University of Missouri

Session Description

Across the past decade, an Annual Moral Development Pre-Conference at one of the major conferences in the field has served as an important space for researchers and theorists to gather and exchange ideas about the state of the area of moral development. This year's pre-conference will focus on intergroup relations, sociopolitical conflict, and their impact on children's moral development. Given the increasing sociopolitical challenges in our societies, understanding intergroup relationships and the ways for supporting moral development and inhibiting conflicts among groups is of critical concern. The pre-conference will include opening remarks, two keynote speakers with time for Q&A, two small-group breakout sessions for discussion, and closing remarks.

Celebrating 20 Years of the SRCD Latinx Caucus: Past, present, and future

Time: 1:00 p.m. – 5:30 p.m.

Organizing Committee

- Doré R. LaForett, Child Trends
- Barbara Rogoff, University of California at Santa Cruz
- James Rodriguez, California State University, Bakersfield
- Bethany Cruz, University of Texas at San Antonio
- Esther Calzada, University of Texas at Austin
- Alan Meca, University of Texas at San Antonio

Session Description

In 2025, the SRCD Latinx Caucus will mark 20 years of advancing a more representative science in Latinx child development research and advocacy. During this pre-conference session, we will celebrate our past, present, and future. To honor our past, founding members of the Latinx Caucus will reflect on the Latinx Caucus’ origins, with additional contributions from other key individuals in the Caucus’s history. To celebrate our present, we will spotlight Caucus members’ accomplishments in the areas of advancing Latinx child development research, building the capacity of Latinx developmental scholars, and elevating our voices through positions of leadership in developmental science. To launch the next chapter in the Caucus’s future, we will collectively discuss areas where Latinx Caucus members should focus their attention spanning scholarship, capacity-building, and leadership.

Mindful Families, Schools, and Communities: Contemplative Practices to Promote Child Well-Being and Health Equity

Time: 9:00 a.m. – 6:00 p.m.

Organizing Committee

- Joshua Felver, Cornell University
- Danielle Rosenscruggs, University of Michigan
- Julie Poehlmann-Tynan, University of Wisconsin-Madison
- Justin Parent, University of Rhode Island
- Liliana Lengua, University of Washington

Session Description

This meeting brings together researchers and practitioners whose work promotes well-being in children and families through contemplative practices (e.g., mindfulness, compassion, self-compassion). The goal is to engage a larger, more diverse, and global audience with this area of research and foster interest among the next generation of scholars. Established and emerging investigators will present novel research, share research directions, stimulate discussion, and expand or build networks, developing a collaborative research agenda. Symposia, flash talks, and posters will focus on four themes: (1) Families Experiencing Adversity and Stress, (2)

Parent Well-being and Parent-Child Relationships, (3) Mindfulness in School Settings, and (4) Mindfulness and Self-Compassion with Children, Youth, and Young Adults. Each theme will address diversity, equity, inclusion, and justice, with a focus on historically marginalized populations, community-based implementation, and discussions of future directions for fostering inclusiveness.

The SRCD Developmental Science Teaching Institute – Pre-Conference

Time: 9:00 AM – 4:30 PM

Organizing Committee

- Aya Shigeto, Nova Southeastern University (Committee Chair)
- Eva Chen, Benedictine College (Committee Member)
- Lucia Alcalá, California State University-Fullerton (Committee Member)

Session Description

The SRCD Developmental Science Teaching Institute, which takes place the day before SRCD’s Biennial Meeting, is designed for teachers of developmental science courses at all levels who wish to develop strategies for engaging students, explore new ideas, update their knowledge base, and share perspectives with like-minded professionals. Encompassing topics that are relevant to beginning and advanced teachers of developmental science alike, the Institute provides sessions of general interest on cutting-edge teaching practices, a variety of breakout sessions, a poster session, and opportunities for interaction to share ideas among participants.

The Institute’s diverse presentation formats allow for informal exchange and enable participants to select an agenda that meets their professional development needs.

SRCD025 Zigler Policy Preconference: Make your research count: Bridging developmental science and policy

Time: 4:00 PM – 7:00 PM

Organizing Committee

- Dr. Sara Vecchiotti, Couch Family Foundation
- SRCD Policy Committee, Conference Subcommittee

Session Description

Learn how to design and communicate research that is useful for policymakers. This policy-focused session honors Dr. Edward Zigler’s legacy by featuring researchers and policymakers who use different models to successfully bridge the gap between developmental science and policy.

Receive practical insights to enhance engagement with the policymaking process, ensuring your work is relevant and impactful. This session is for all career and expertise stages. Panelists share projects that helped to inform policy decisions across broad child and family policy areas, including early care and education, child welfare, child health, and more.

A moderated discussion addresses keyways to align research with policymakers’ needs, understanding policy timelines, and strategies for effective communication and dissemination. Discussion explores how to center evidence and policy discussions impacting minoritized communities and offer guidance on making research actionable for diverse policy audiences.

SRCD Supported Pre-Conference Events

SRCD First-time Attendees Welcome Event

Time: 6:30 PM – 7:30 PM

Organizing Committee

- SRCD Student & Early Career Council (SECC)

Session Description

Join us for an engaging and informative reception designed specifically for first-time SRCD Biennial attendees to help you make the most of your conference experience. This event offers a unique opportunity to connect with fellow first-timers and pick up tips and tricks for navigating the conference. After a relaxed networking activity and welcoming remarks from SRCD leadership, you will have the chance to connect with SRCD caucus, student and early career members as they share their insights and advice for maximizing your time at the conference.

Attendees will have the opportunity to explore a variety of topics through dynamic, interactive discussions, including: an introduction to the work of SRCD caucuses, understanding the different types of conference sessions, tips for selecting the best sessions to attend, navigating the conference venue, effective networking strategies, and recommendations for what to explore in Minneapolis.

Hosted by the Student and Early Career Council Subcommittee, this reception is the ideal opportunity to familiarize yourself with the conference while building meaningful connections with your peers in the field of child development. Don't miss this chance to set yourself up for a successful and rewarding Biennial experience!

Disability Caucus Interest Meeting: Building a Community

11:30 AM - 12:30 PM

Location: 101H (MCC)

Attend our interest meeting to explore the creation of a new SRCD caucus centered on disability. The caucus will focus on disability justice and inclusivity. This session aims to gather individuals with any disabilities including chronic illnesses, neurodivergence, mental health, physical, sensory, and any other types of disabilities—to discuss the formation of a community dedicated to support and advocacy. Individuals whose research centers on disability may also be interested in joining this caucus. The purpose of this meeting is to gauge interest in the caucus, conduct a survey to identify members' expectations, and share personal insights and aspirations for the group's future from the organizers of the meeting. Emphasizing community building and mutual support, we envision a space where members can collaborate on research, share resources, and advocate for inclusive practices. Your involvement is essential in building a caucus that reflects our shared commitment to advancing disability justice and enhancing the representation of disabled individuals in child development research and practice.

Location: Auditorium – Main (MCC)

Keynote Speaker

- Raj Chetty, Harvard University

Children's chances of earning more than their parents have fallen from 90% to 50% over the past half century in America. This talk will show the central role that child development plays in driving these trends and in shaping economic opportunity more broadly. We will discuss a series of studies conducted by Opportunity Insights that use big data covering millions of people from sources ranging from anonymized tax records to Facebook social network data to understand the science of economic opportunity. The talk will analyze how and why children's chances of climbing the income ladder vary across the neighborhoods in which they grow up, examine the drivers of racial and gender disparities in economic mobility, and highlight the role of social capital as a key driver of upward mobility. The talk will conclude by discussing policy levers to increase upward mobility: reducing racial and economic segregation, transforming communities through place-based investments, and strengthening higher education programs. We will give examples of interventions in each of these domains that are shaping the design of policy and discuss directions for future interdisciplinary research that can help expand opportunities for all.
